

Nightclubbing

Nightclubbing - Youngs first book in ten years - includes a foreword by Nile Rodgers and features iconic party shots taken at star-studded venues over the past four decades. Black and white images from the 70s and 80s and colour images from the 90s and noughties combine to uncover a crazy and wild, fun-loving and free-spirited, racy depiction of the nightlife inside Londons most famous clubs. Through Richard Youngs up close and personal approach, this book follows rocks stars, socialites, royals, fashionistas, disco divas and dancing queens from Maunkberrys to Embassy Club, Legends to Tramp. Richard comments: The 70s were wild with both the gay scene and the punk scene emerging and breaking ground. The 80s saw English society in full swing and the dance scene was embraced with gusto. In the 90s we morphed into colour - not only through photography but the fashion got more eccentric and creative. The 00s was the decade of supermodels, superstars and super-royals, but also the time where photography became more highly controlled. Somehow I still managed to sneak in a few cheeky shots.
