

Historic Postcards of Avoyelles

PRINTED IN FULL COLOR - Very few postcards remain of the early days of Avoyelles. But those that do, help tell a story of a different time, and certainly a different look. They were the original short version of text messaging with a snapshot, offering a short alternative to a long hand written letter. Traveling photographers captured the images of some of the Main Streets, schools, depots and churches of Avoyelles Parish at the beginning of the 1900s, then offered them for sale at the local drug store or general store. Sometimes they took photos of someones home, and sold a set to the homeowner. There was often even a postcard with a photo of the Post Office. At least three of those survive in Avoyelles, one each in Bunkie, Egg Bend, and Marksville. From various sources, over the course of several years, the images of the postcards in the following pages were collected. Most were in black and white, but some were colorized, by hand. This book is printed in full color. Since the 1940s, only about a dozen post cards have been produced in Avoyelles, and we also included some of them. Most are from the personal collection of the author. Cards include the 1896 and 1927 Avoyelles Courthouses, as well as scenes in Bunkie, Cottonport, Hessmer, Mansura and Marksville.
